

David Rauschenberger, MD

City: Orange City, FL

Date of Graduation from Medical School: 1958

Medical School Graduated From: University of Pittsburgh

Specialty: General Practice

What factors influenced your decision to become a physician and your choice of specialty?

Probably my mother's heart attack and close contact with her physician.

Did you experience a defining moment that made you feel you had become a physician?

One such was starting practice (solo) in Orange City as its first M.D., day after Labor Day 1962 with appointment book filled for three weeks (done by local lions club).

As you were training to be a physician, what one piece of advice was most valuable to you?

If one talks with a patient long enough, he/she will give you the way to a diagnosis.

What is the most significant medical innovation you experienced in your years of practice?

Bypass surgery (since I have already made use of it two times).